

National Health SERVICES DIRECTORY

What is the NHSD?

The National Health Services Directory (NHSD) is a free comprehensive national directory of health services enabling consumers and health providers to access reliable and consistent health information.

Why should I be in the NHSD?

The NHSD provides access to information about health services for everyone and can be found on many websites including Federal, State and Territory Governments, Medicare Locals and peak bodies including the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners and the Pharmaceutical Society of Australia.

For consumers the NHSD provides easy access to the services you offer including your organisation's contact details, opening hours and facilities available such as billing and accessibility options.

For health providers the NHSD facilitates the coordination of ongoing care for patients providing connection of care and referral pathway information.

Is my service listed on the NHSD?

To find out whether your organisation is listed on the NHSD go to the following webpage and search for your service:

www.nhscd.com.au/review

If you are a GP, or from a Pharmacy, Hospital or Emergency Department you can also check your details by downloading the NHSD app for your iPhone or Android.

I can't find my service details on the NHSD

Register to have your organisation and service details included on the NHSD by going to:

www.nhsd.com.au/register

You will be contacted by the NHSD Team to validate and complete your information.

I've found my service details but they are incorrect or incomplete

You can advise us of any incorrect or incomplete information by completing the feedback form at:

<http://manage.nhsd.com.au/feedback.aspx>

or email: nhsd@healthdirect.org.au and provide details of the changes required. You will be contacted by the NHSD Team to confirm your information.

Can I update my own organisation and service information on the NHSD?

Yes, self-authorship is the way in which you will be able to keep your own details up-to-date on the NHSD. This can include the updating of health provider and service information such as services offered, contact details, and operating hours. This enables you to control the information that is publically displayed and to easily make real time changes.

Self-authorship will be available in the near future so for further information please email nhsd@healthdirect.org.au
